

Don't Look Now Stalled Again

When the Torrance YMCA takes more than 700 boys and girls to camp in the first month of summer, there are bound to be a few problems.

Officials at the local YMCA felt they had received their full share of mechanical difficulties after last weekend.

The score card was impressively lop-sided against the Y.

One newly acquired 45-passenger bus lay permanently stalled in Bakersfield with a cracked block.

One 1962 caravan truck was having a completely new engine installed in Portland, Ore., while 29 boys intently watched the mechanics.

Another new caravan truck, en route from Seattle to rescue the boys in the garage, lost a manifold, while the YMCA girls, who usually use it, spent an extra day at the World's Fair.

The only bright spot on the Y's mechanical horizon was an ancient pick-up truck owned by the youth organization which was merrily chugging along at Camp Round, according to Joe Wilcox, Y secretary.
